Poetry is a rich source of visual language. Although there are examples of visual language that can be found in all literary genres, perhaps no more than poetry. Good poets pack the worlds of meaning into small small lines. These lines cause emotions, thoughts, and sometimes social changes. One way poets perform these linguistic miracles is figurative language. On this page there is a selection of poems that I find to be rich in visual language. Each poem also contains examples of understanding, conclusion, review, and discussion questions so that they are ready for use in the classroom.
